ROOTS AND GROWTH OF INDIVIDUAL PSYCHOLOGY IN ASIA

MARCH 20 - 22, 2026

OSAKA, JAPAN

Call for Proposals!!!

Focus on the best applications of Adlerian psychology in counseling, psychotherapy, medicine, education, parent training, & organizational development. The best proposals should emphasize localized practices rooted in Asian regional contexts.

To be held in person only. Keynote speeches & special lectures will be recorded via Zoom, translated into multiple languages, & made available after the conference.

Will feature a range of educational activities, including keynote lectures, special lectures, parallel sessions, workshops, a social event, & a poster session. The major lectures & a variety of parallel sessions will be translated into English and/or the languages of the three countries.

Submissions are open to participants worldwide. Selection will consider diversity & regional balance.

Collaborative proposals (by speakers from both within and outside Asia) are especially welcome.

We welcome proposals for 45–60-minute lectures, presentations, and poster sessions. Abstracts must be in English and may include optional translations into Japanese, Korean, or Chinese.

Please include: a) The title of your proposed presentation, b) The type of presentation (lecture, seminar, poster), c) Your name & educational credentials, d) Your affiliation with any IAIP member organization (optional); e) Your contact information (email); f) The 150-200 word abstract (English & Japanese, Korean, or Chinese if needed); g) Major educational objective of your proposed presentation.
